- 1.3 The assignment shall be implemented in accordance with the phasing indicated in the Data Sheet. When the assignment includes several phases, the performance of the Bidder under each phase must be to the Procuring Entity's satisfaction before work begins on the next phase.
- 1.4 The Bidders must familiarize themselves with local conditions and take them into account in preparing their proposals. The Bidders' representative should contact the Procuring Entity at the address stated in the Data Sheet or to obtain additional information on the pre-bid conference.
- 1.5 The Procuring Entity will provide the inputs specified in the Data Sheet, assist the firm in obtaining licenses and permits needed to carry out the services, and make available relevant project data and reports.

- 1.6 Please note that (i) the costs of preparing the proposal, including a visit to the Procuring Entity, are not reimbursable as a direct cost of the assignment; and (ii) the Procuring Entity is not bound to accept any of the proposals submitted.

- 1.7.2 Since previous or ongoing participation in relation to the assignment by the Bidder, its professional staff, or its affiliates or associates under a contract with the SADC Secretariat and Procuring Entity may result in rejection of the proposal, the bidders should clarify their situation in that respect with the Procuring Entity before preparing the proposal.
- 1.7.3 Bidders may be hired for downstream work, when continuity is essential, in which case this possibility shall be indicated in the Data Sheet and the factors used for the selection of the Bidder should take the likelihood of continuation into account. SOUTHERN AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT COMMUNITY

PROFILLING OF THE SADC REGIONAL AQUACULTURE VALUE CHAIN- DEVELOPMENT OF A BUSINESS CASE

1. BACKGROUND

The revised SADC Regional Indicative Strategic Development Plan (RISDP 2015-2020) earmarks Industrial Development and Market Integration as top priority with the overall goal of facilitating competitive and diversified industrial development for deeper regional integration and poverty eradication. The promotion of regional value chains and increasing value addition for agricultural and non-agricultural products, and these includes fish and fishery products, are key vehicles for realising sustainable industrial development, improving productivity and supply side capacity.

In March 2015, the SADC Heads of State approved the SADC Industrialisation Strategy and Roadmap (2015-2063) (SISR), adopting it as the framework within which Member States can pursue industrial development. The SISR is designed as a modernisation scheme, aimed at raising living standards, intensifying structural change and achieving a rapid catch up on of the region with industrializing and developed countries. The Strategy is anchored on three pillars: industrialisation as a champion of economic and technological transformation, competitiveness as an active process to move from comparative advantage to competitive advantage and regional integration and geography as the context for industrial development and prosperity.

The structure of production in SADC Member States is characteristic of a developing region where shares of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) originate from primary production sectors, mainly agriculture (including fisheries) and mining. The contribution of these sectors to the economy is relatively high, averaging close to 50% of GDP. In that contribution, exports are in the main raw materials and commodities of low value. Resultantly, SADC's net trade is significantly negative. The level of agro-processing (including fish processing) and natural resources including mineral beneficiation in the SADC region is comparatively low. With the exception of South Africa and Mauritius, which have sizeable manufacturing sectors, the SADC industrial sector remains relatively undeveloped and undiversified.

Consequently, agro-processing (including fish processing), natural resources including minerals beneficiation and downstream processing, and enhanced participation in value chains at national, regional and global levels have been prioritised as the three mutually compatible growth paths of the three pillars of the SADC Industrialisation Strategy. The Action Plan to operationalise the SISR, as approved by the SADC Summit in March 2017, envisages substantial quantitative shifts in the industrial structure, export performance and employment, through these growth paths which promote the adoption of appropriate technology and production of more diversified, higher value goods and services.

2. AQUACULTURE IN THE SADC REGION

The fisheries sector in SADC countries, comprising marine and inland capture fisheries and aquaculture, generates a variety of benefits, including food and nutrition security, livelihoods, employment, exports and foreign currency earnings, and conservation and biodiversity values that are of global significance. In some Member States, fish is the only affordable source of several essential nutrients.

The fisheries and aquaculture sector employs a total of about 2.4 million people, equivalent of about 1 % of the SADC population, and accounts for an estimated 3.54% of the region's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and 8.99% of the region's agriculture GDP. More than 95% of this production comes from a diversified capture fisheries sub-sector, which has been stagnating in last 10 years or so around 2.5 million tonnes, but has recently increased to 2,8 million. This bears testimony to the efforts that SADC Member States have been employing in improving management of fisheries resources.

A small but growing percentage of fish comes from an emerging aquaculture sub-sector which has recently increased from 69,851 metric tonnes (2015) to 95,761 metric tonnes (2017) (FAO FishStat, 2016; SADC, 2017). To support future needs, capture fisheries will need to be sustained and if possible enhanced, and aquaculture developed rapidly, to increase by an annual average of more than 8.3% by 2026, in line with the SADC Regional Aquaculture Strategy and Action Plan (RASAP). The current growth of an average 15% is because most countries are growing from a zero or low base, and we hope this will stabilise at around 8% or a bit more than that.

Increasing regional food prices, the increasing demand for fish and fish products regionally and globally and declining capture fisheries provide significant prospects for growth of the aquaculture sector in the SADC region. Given the steady decline in capture fisheries and an ever-increasing population, SADC countries need to increase its aquaculture production in order to meet the growing deficit. Jamu et al. (2012) showed that the major successes of aquaculture development in Africa have been achieved through the critical role of the private sector in mobilizing investments to produce for the market and developing innovative approaches such as importation of technologies and managerial capacities required to profitably produce large quantities of fish from commercial aquaculture. The success behind Egypt as the number producer of farmed fish on the continent or Asian countries as leading producers in the world, lies in their governments' commitments towards the sector including the well-developed aquaculture value chains.

In Asia and Egypt, both the input and output markets are well developed and dominated by the private sector. Although SADC region is endowed with natural water resources that favours aquaculture production, the growth in the Aquaculture does not match the ever-increasing demand for fish, due to a number of reasons. The aquaculture production has not been able to respond to the increase in demands of fish, because of, among others, an underdeveloped input supply system. The quality and quantity of fingerlings and feed produced in most SADC countries are low. Most countries in the region do not have dedicated fish feeds. Further to this, the SADC Regional Aquaculture Strategy and Action Plan (2016-2026) highlights weaknesses in the in SADC aquaculture sector including;

- Absence of Regional aquaculture value chain.
- Lack of understanding of aquaculture sector by financial institutions.
- Inadequate support for the transformation of small scale, community based aquaculture into SMMEs.
- Weak research support structures for small scale and community-based aquaculture in most Member States.
- Very poor financial support for research on small scale, community based aquaculture in most Member States.
- Inadequate scientific and technical cooperation among Member States.
- Inefficient information dissemination mechanisms.
- Regulatory frameworks that restrain commercial aquaculture development in some Member States.
- Weak extension services for small scale, community based aquaculture.
- Poorly resourced state hatcheries.
- Inadequate development strategies for commercial aquaculture in some Member States.

2. DESCRIPTION OF THE ASSIGNMENT

While aquaculture production in SADC is still insignificant continental level, this lack of development exists against a backdrop of conditions that would benefit greatly from the rapid development of aquaculture in the region, namely, high incidence of poverty, malnutrition and unemployment. With the rapid population growth that characterizes SADC and Africa at large, and the need for food security being more critical and at the central point of most government policies, it is necessary that aquaculture assume its long-foreseen role as an important contributor to increased nutritional and economic well-being. Aquaculture activities have positive spin-offs for the wider economy as exported products provide a source of foreign exchange and they contribute to increased food production, which improves food security.

The development of scale commercial aquaculture has accelerated rapidly in several SADC Member States, and aquaculture development now has priority development status in most SADC Member States. As an emerging industry, there are few established 'blueprints' for successful aquaculture that investors can follow and much of the envisaged future development will include pioneering work in respect to geographic locations, species, production systems, products and markets. Crucial in the development of the industry will therefore be the overarching requirement to selectively promote projects and investment opportunities that are strategically aligned with natural resources, climatic conditions, indigenous species and market demands to name a few. Therefore, there is a need to conduct a study in the region on the business case for the development of a regional aquaculture value chain. This study will provide knowledge to SADC Member Countries to make informed investment decisions to derive greater economic value from aquaculture activities, for instance, through downstream processing. In addition, the knowledge that to be generated from this study will strengthen the capacity to develop national sector strategies such as feed, seed and processing. It is expected that the development of regional synergies in the aquaculture sector and an integrated regional market for fish and fish-based value added products will stimulate competitiveness and create opportunities for the private sector, including marginalized groups, to reap the benefits of industrial development and trade.

2.1 OBJECTIVES OF THE ASSIGNMENT

The objectives of the study are to describe the markets and marketing infrastructure for aquaculture products in the region in terms of production volumes, product forms, price, quality and target consumers. A comprehensive geographic mapping exercise should be conducted to identify clusters and growth nodes that should be prioritized for value chain development.

During the study inception phase, all participating countries will be assessed to determine which will be targeted for detailed "on-the-ground" data collection and assessment. The objectives of this value-chain study will be to:

- (iii) Establish current developments in the sector by looking at such factors as trends in production volumes, sector growth and employment creation, value addition, import and export markets as well as national policy and regulatory environment in support of the sector.

- (iv) Understand risk and price-setting along the aquaculture value chain. This will enable the efficient application of best practices (e.g., Hazards Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP)) and the use of targeted technologies to increase efficiency so that quality is improved with minimal price increases for poor consumers; and
 - (v) Evaluate key constraints and opportunities for value chain upgrading and growth inclusive of policy, regulations, quality to facilitate trade and new markets and to evaluate the potential for the sustainable expansion of aquaculture in all target countries and the extent to which this would complement or conflict with existing fisheries.

2.2 DESCRIPTION OF TASKS

Based on the three-month time frame it is presumed that most countries will be assessed during this project. It is expected that a detailed work plan will only be developed after these target countries have been decided. However, the general tasks for the duration of the study will be as follows:

- (i) Compile and review current and historical documentation held by Academic institutions, Government Authorities, Global Organization and others to identify aquaculture operations and marketing routes, geo-referenced to the extent possible. Major farms and transport corridors and a sub marine of small scale farms and marketing routes should be included and digitally mapped.
- (ii) Develop country sector profiles by consulting farmers, export authorities, exporters/traders, transport companies, processors, fish collectors and use spot sampling surveys to assess the magnitude of domestic and cross-border trade by species, price and value addition per unit by each segment, quality and product form. The project will only operate up to the borders of the selected countries so there will be four categories of trade: domestic, intra-basin (among riparian states), regional (land borders leading out of the riparian states) and international export (by air and sea freight).
- (iii) Estimate the future potential (technical, economic and policy aspects) for aquaculture to significantly affect traded volumes in fisheries along most likely marketing routes, with a focus on the potential use of small pelagics as fishmeal for aquaculture diets.
- (iv) Suggest improvements in basic value chain infrastructure such as roads and pre-transport handling facilities that would enable private sector investment.

- (v) Using the SADC Aquaculture Evaluation Tool (2016), evaluate aquaculture operations to determine level of industry attractiveness and industry level competitiveness.
 - (vi) Describe the policy, strategies and regulatory environment surrounding aquaculture and small-scale investment in aquaculture and suggest reforms as necessary.
 - (vii) Estimate a reduction in loss and waste that could be obtained through the above interventions, specifically number (iv) above.
 - (viii) Suggest a monitoring and evaluation system implemented at critical control points, as locally as possible, along the value chain.
 - (ix) Prepare a consolidated report and organize a regional validation workshop to be attended by all key stakeholders in the respective segments of the value chain.

2.3 REQUIRED OUTPUTS AND DELIVERABLES

The deliverables expected from the assignment are:

- (i) Country profile briefs of all participating countries describing the national policies, strategies and legislative instruments in support of regional value chain development. The country briefs should further indicate the level and depth of the aquaculture value chain at Member State level by way of national value chain mapping. Countries are to be ranked in terms of their levels of value chain development.
- (ii) A SADC Region Evidence-Based Report on Existing and Potential Regional Aquaculture Value Chains that clearly articulates the SADC Region's aquaculture value chains and potential in terms of type, form, spread, depth and make-up chains as well as the success factors, challenges and constraints associated with actualizing that potential; and
- (iii) A Priority Action Roadmap for the Development and Establishment of Sustainable Regional Aquaculture Value Chains that the SADC Region should focus on in promoting the development and establishment of the regional aquaculture value chains.

The outputs expected from the assignment are:

- (i) Execution Plan that outlines a detailed approach and methodology for implementing this assignment. This Execution Plan shall be submitted within a week of contract signing/beginning of the assignment;

- (ii) Inception Report that is based on the Execution Plan that will be submitted for consideration and further guidance by the SADC Secretariat within 7 weeks after the start of the assignment;
- (iii) Draft Report that will be submitted for consideration and validation by the regional stakeholders and should be accompanied by country reports as annexes (for all selected countries). This report should deliver on all deliverables as outlined; This Draft Report should be submitted within 11 weeks from the commencement of the assignment.
- (iv) Final Draft Report that takes into account the comments, views and recommendations from the regional stakeholders. This Final Draft Report shall be delivered within 2 weeks from the date of stakeholder engagement.

All deliverables, reports and communications with the contracting authority shall be in English in MS Word/Excel/PowerPoint format, and ready for printing and distribution. Reports shall not exceed 50 pages. The SADC Secretariat will arrange for the translation of reports and communications into all SADC languages.
