ANNEX 1: TERMS OF REFERENCE

Development of Monitoring, Evaluation and Reporting Framework for Protocol on Science, Technology and Innovation

1. Introduction

1.1 The SADC Secretariat recognises the importance of monitoring and evaluation as provided in the Revised Regional Indicative Strategic Development Plan (RISDP) which specifies the need to monitor the implementation of programmes, strategies, policies, projects and SADC instruments. Importantly, the SADC Policy for Strategy Development, Planning, Monitoring and evaluation (SPME) approved by SADC Council of Ministers in Luanda in February 2012 reinforces this thrust, and recognises that the monitoring and implementation of the regional programmes and policies in conjunction with their evaluation is an important function which contributes to better policy analysis and coordination and subsequently improve policy design and the relevance of programmes and projects. The SPME aims at strengthening decision-making processes of SADC i.e. priority setting, resource allocation and programme management to improve performance towards achievement of SADC objectives.

1.2 Pursuant to the implementation of the SPME, the Secretariat has developed a Results Based Monitoring and Evaluation System (RBME) that was developed and approved by Council in March 2017. The system focuses on physical and financial monitoring of annual work plans, strategies, policies and projects, and protocols. Physical monitoring culminates into the production of quarterly, six months, and annual reports. The reports show progress in achievement of outputs and budget utilisation at any point in time. The system also tracks progress in the implementation of decisions by Council, Summit and all other SADC structures. Some components of physical monitoring have already been incorporated in the Planning and Budgeting Module and have been operational since Quarter 1 of the 2016/17 financial year. The reports generated by the system are being used by Management on a real time basis to track progress in the implementation of operational plans and absorption of financial resources. This forms the basis for efficiency in decision making and adoption of corrective measures.
The system has also been used to track the implementation of Council and Summit Decisions by Directorates and Units.

1.3 Whilst, a lot of progress has been made on the above, some work still needs to be undertaken to operationalize the Protocol monitoring module. In line with the objectives of SPME and RBME, monitoring of Protocols helps keep track of the degree to which Protocols are being domesticated and implemented and in turn, the information obtained from monitoring Protocols keeps policy makers adequately informed about challenges being faced and the likelihood of success of the regional integration efforts. Ultimately this will inform the strategic management and planning functions of the SADC Secretariat, especially in identifying areas in which the Secretariat can provide support to Member States to accelerate Protocol ratification, domestication and implementation.

1.4 Currently the monitoring function of Protocols which comprises the collection of relevant information, collation, analysis and reporting on the progress achieved with respect to national and regional level indicators is done by the technical directorates of the SADC Secretariat who work in close collaboration with the Member States. However, most of the Protocols are not being monitored due to lack of Monitoring, Evaluation and Reporting Frameworks for the various Protocols. The Online system has also not been utilized as most of the monitoring is done through questionnaires.

1.5 In theory to achieve the regional integration and cooperation agenda, SADC Member States need to move in unison and with some urgency to fully domesticate the SADC Protocols and formulate relevant supporting national laws, policies, strategic plans and programmes for implementation of their obligations under the specific protocols. In reality Member States vary in their capacities, enabling conditions, commitment, resources and progress in implementing these Protocols. Some evaluation of the implementation of SADC Protocols will be useful in identifying challenges faced by Member States in implementing the Protocols and developing strategies to support the members states to successfully implement the Protocols and importantly where necessary to make recommendations for the revision of the Protocols.

2. Background

2.1 The main purpose of the Southern African Development Community (SADC) is to improve economic growth and development, alleviate poverty, enhance the quality of life of the people of the Region, support its socially disadvantageous areas through productive systems, deeper cooperation and integration so that the region emerges as a competitive and effective player in international trade and world economy. In seeking to meet both its social and economic aspirations, SADC recognises the important role and contribution of science, technology and innovation (STI) in political, economic and social development of the region in order to inter alia facilitate industrial development, competitiveness, regional integration and cooperation. Thus promoting science, technology and innovation is one of the broad strategic objectives of the SADC regional integration and cooperation agenda.

2.2 The immediate outcome for science, technology and innovation is support the industrialization strategy and other priorities of regional integration. The areas of focus include STI policy support and development; promotion of Public Private Partnerships (PPP) investment in STI and Research and Development Infrastructure; development and promotion of research, innovation and technology transfer; promotion and awareness of STI; enhancing and strengthening the protection of Intellectual Property Rights (IPR); promotion of women and youth participation in science, engineering and technology; and promoting and strengthening regional cooperation partnerships to support the development of science, technology and innovation.

2.3 Strategies for achieving these and other areas of focus are the domestication of the Protocol on Science, Technology and Innovation (STI); establishment of collaborative regional Research, Development and Innovation (R&DI) programmes in priority areas; setting-up and strengthening regional Centres of Excellence as well as networks in priority areas of STI and developing and strengthening regional STI capacities. In 2015, the SADC region developed and approved the regional Industrialization Strategy and Road Map (2015-2063) which underscores science, technology and innovation as one the important enabling factors for Industrialization.

2.4 The overall objective of the Protocol on Science, Technology and Innovation of 2008 is to foster co-operation and promote, the development, transfer and mastery of science, technology and innovation in the region. The Protocol was signed in August 2008 by the SADC Heads of State and Governments and entered into force in 2017. One of the challenges has been the long time it took for the member states to ratify the Protocol. In Article 2 of the Protocol the following objectives are outlined:

i) Establish institutional mechanisms in order to strengthen regional cooperation and coordination of science, technology and innovation;
ii) Institute management and coordination structures with clearly defined functions, which will facilitate the implementation of regional STI programmes;

iii) Promote the development and harmonization of science, technology and innovation policies in the region;

iv) Pool resources for scientific research, technological development and innovation within the region;

v) Optimize public and private investment in research and development within the region and leverage external contributions;

vi) Implement the RISDP and other science, technology and innovation programmes agreed upon in regional and international fora;

vii) Demystify science, technology and innovation by promoting public understanding and awareness and meaningful participation in these disciplines; viii) Recognize, develop and promote the value of indigenous knowledge systems and technologies;

ix) Share experiences and develop joint initiatives that promote appropriate technologies for wealth creation and elimination of poverty within communities, especially in rural areas;

x) Develop human resources in STI and work collectively towards the attraction, motivation and retention of scientists for the development of the region;

xi) Strengthen institutional capacity in research and technology institutions in the region and facilitate institutional cooperation and networks;

xii) Work towards the elimination of restrictions of movement of scientists and technologists within the SADC for the purpose of education, research and participation in joint STI programmes; xiii) Enhance and strengthen the protection of intellectual property rights;

xiv) Increase access to the teaching and learning of basic science and mathematics at all levels of the education system;

ANNEX 1: TERMS OF REFERENCE

Development of Monitoring, Evaluation and Reporting Framework for Protocol on Science, Technology and Innovation

1. Introduction

1.1 The SADC Secretariat recognises the importance of monitoring and evaluation as provided in the Revised Regional Indicative Strategic Development Plan (RISDP) which specifies the need to monitor the implementation of programmes, strategies, policies, projects and SADC instruments. Importantly, the SADC Policy for Strategy Development, Planning, Monitoring and evaluation (SPME) approved by SADC Council of Ministers in Luanda in February 2012 reinforces this thrust, and recognises that the monitoring and implementation of the regional programmes and policies in conjunction with their evaluation is an important function which contributes to better policy analysis and coordination and subsequently improve policy design and the relevance of programmes and projects. The SPME aims at strengthening decision-making processes of SADC i.e. priority setting, resource allocation and programme management to improve performance towards achievement of SADC objectives.

1.2 Pursuant to the implementation of the SPME, the Secretariat has developed a Results Based Monitoring and Evaluation System (RBME) that was developed and approved by Council in March 2017. The system focuses on physical and financial monitoring of annual work plans, strategies, policies and projects, and protocols. Physical monitoring culminates into the production of quarterly, six months, and annual reports. The reports show progress in achievement of outputs and budget utilisation at any point in time. The system also tracks progress in the implementation of decisions by Council, Summit and all other SADC structures. Some components of physical monitoring have already been incorporated in the Planning and Budgeting Module and have been operational since Quarter 1 of the 2016/17 financial year. The reports generated by the system are being used by Management on a real time basis to track progress in the implementation of operational plans and absorption of financial resources. This forms the basis for efficiency in decision making and adoption of corrective measures.
The system has also been used to track the implementation of Council and Summit Decisions by Directorates and Units.

1.3 Whilst, a lot of progress has been made on the above, some work still needs to be undertaken to operationalize the Protocol monitoring module. In line with the objectives of SPME and RBME, monitoring of Protocols helps keep track of the degree to which Protocols are being domesticated and implemented and in turn, the information obtained from monitoring Protocols keeps policy makers adequately informed about challenges being faced and the likelihood of success of the regional integration efforts. Ultimately this will inform the strategic management and planning functions of the SADC Secretariat, especially in identifying areas in which the Secretariat can provide support to Member States to accelerate Protocol ratification, domestication and implementation.

1.4 Currently the monitoring function of Protocols which comprises the collection of relevant information, collation, analysis and reporting on the progress achieved with respect to national and regional level indicators is done by the technical directorates of the SADC Secretariat who work in close collaboration with the Member States. However, most of the Protocols are not being monitored due to lack of Monitoring, Evaluation and Reporting Frameworks for the various Protocols. The Online system has also not been utilized as most of the monitoring is done through questionnaires.

1.5 In theory to achieve the regional integration and cooperation agenda, SADC Member States need to move in unison and with some urgency to fully domesticate the SADC Protocols and formulate relevant supporting national laws, policies, strategic plans and programmes for implementation of their obligations under the specific protocols. In reality Member States vary in their capacities, enabling conditions, commitment, resources and progress in implementing these Protocols. Some evaluation of the implementation of SADC Protocols will be useful in identifying challenges faced by Member States in implementing the Protocols and developing strategies to support the member states to successfully implement the Protocols and importantly where necessary to make recommendations for the revision of the Protocols.

2. Background

2.1 The main purpose of the Southern African Development Community (SADC) is to improve economic growth and development, alleviate poverty, enhance the quality of life of the people of the Region, support its socially disadvantaged areas through productive systems, deeper cooperation and integration so that the region emerges as a competitive and effective player in international trade and world economy. In seeking to meet both its social and economic aspirations, SADC recognises the important role and contribution of science, technology and innovation (STI) in political, economic and social development of the region inorder to inter alia facilitate industrial development, competitiveness, regional integration and cooperation. Thus promoting science, technology and innovation is one of the broad strategic objectives of the SADC regional integration and cooperation agenda.

2.2 The immediate outcome for science, technology and innovation is support the industrialization strategy and other priorities of regional integration. The areas of focus include STI policy support and development; promotion of Public Private Partnerships (PPP) investment in STI and Research and Development Infrastructure; development and promotion of research, innovation and technology transfer; promotion and awareness of STI; enhancing and strengthening the protection of Intellectual Property Rights (IPR); promotion of women and youth participation in science, engineering and technology; and promoting and strengthening regional cooperation partnerships to support the development of science, technology and innovation.

2.3 Strategies for achieving these and other areas of focus are the domestication of the Protocol on Science, Technology and Innovation (STI); establishment of collaborative regional Research, Development and Innovation (R&D) programmes in priority areas; setting-up and strengthening regional Centres of Excellence as well as networks in priority areas of STI and developing and strengthening regional STI capacities. In 2015, the SADC region developed and approved the regional Industrialization Strategy and Road Map (2015-2063) which underscores science, technology and innovation as one the important enabling factors for Industrialization.

2.4 The overall objective of the Protocol on Science, Technology and Innovation of 2008 is to foster co-operation and promote, the development, transfer and mastery of science, technology and innovation in the region. The Protocol was signed in August 2008 by the SADC Heads of State and Governments and entered into force in 2017. One of the challenges has been the long time it took for the member states to ratify the Protocol. In Article 2 of the Protocol the following objectives are outlined:

xvii) Establish institutional mechanisms in order to strengthen regional cooperation and coordination of science, technology and innovation; xviii) Institute management and coordination structures with clearly defined functions, which will facilitate the implementation of regional STI programmes;

xix) Promote the development and harmonization of science, technology and innovation policies in the region;

xx) Pool resources for scientific research, technological development and innovation within the region;

xxi) Optimize public and private investment in research and development within the region and leverage external contributions; xxii) Implement the RISDP and other science, technology and innovation programmes agreed upon in regional and international fora; xxiii) Demystify science, technology and innovation by promoting public understanding and awareness and meaningful participation in these disciplines; xxiv) Recognize, develop and promote the value of indigenous knowledge systems and technologies;

xxv) Share experiences and develop joint initiatives that promote appropriate technologies for wealth creation and elimination of poverty within communities, especially in rural areas; xxvi) Develop human resources in STI and work collectively towards the attraction, motivation and retention of scientists for the development of the region; xxvii) Strengthen institutional capacity in research and technology institutions in the region and facilitate institutional cooperation and networks; xxviii) Work towards the elimination of restrictions of movement of scientists and technologists within the SADC for the purpose of education, research and participation in joint STI programmes; xxix) Enhance and strengthen the protection of intellectual property rights;

xxx) Increase access to the teaching and learning of basic science and mathematics at all levels of the education system; xxxi) Promote quality in teaching and learning of basic science and mathematics at all levels of the education system; and xxxii) Promote gender equity and equality in the teaching and learning of basic science and mathematics at all levels of the education system.
